Second respiratory clinic now open on the Gold Coast

A second respiratory clinic has opened at Upper Coomera, as Queensland's testing criteria has been expanded so that anyone in the state who has a fever (or history of fever) or acute respiratory symptoms can get tested for COVID-19.

The Commonwealth Government is establishing GP led clinics and Gold Coast Primary Health Network has been supporting this process locally on the Gold Coast.

Respiratory clinics provide a safe environment for dedicated assessment and testing of any respiratory symptoms, including fever, cough, sore throat, shortness of breath.

There are no referrals required, but bookings are essential.

Testing is free for everyone.
